

Labels are used to represent parts of the design. These labels are used in the traceability matrix to connect parts of the design to the requirements.

Two integers are entered. This validation process happens twice.